

Top Programming Languages of 2024

JavaScript dominates web development, enabling interactive features in browsers and building highly dynamic front-end applications. It is commonly used to create dynamic websites and apps.

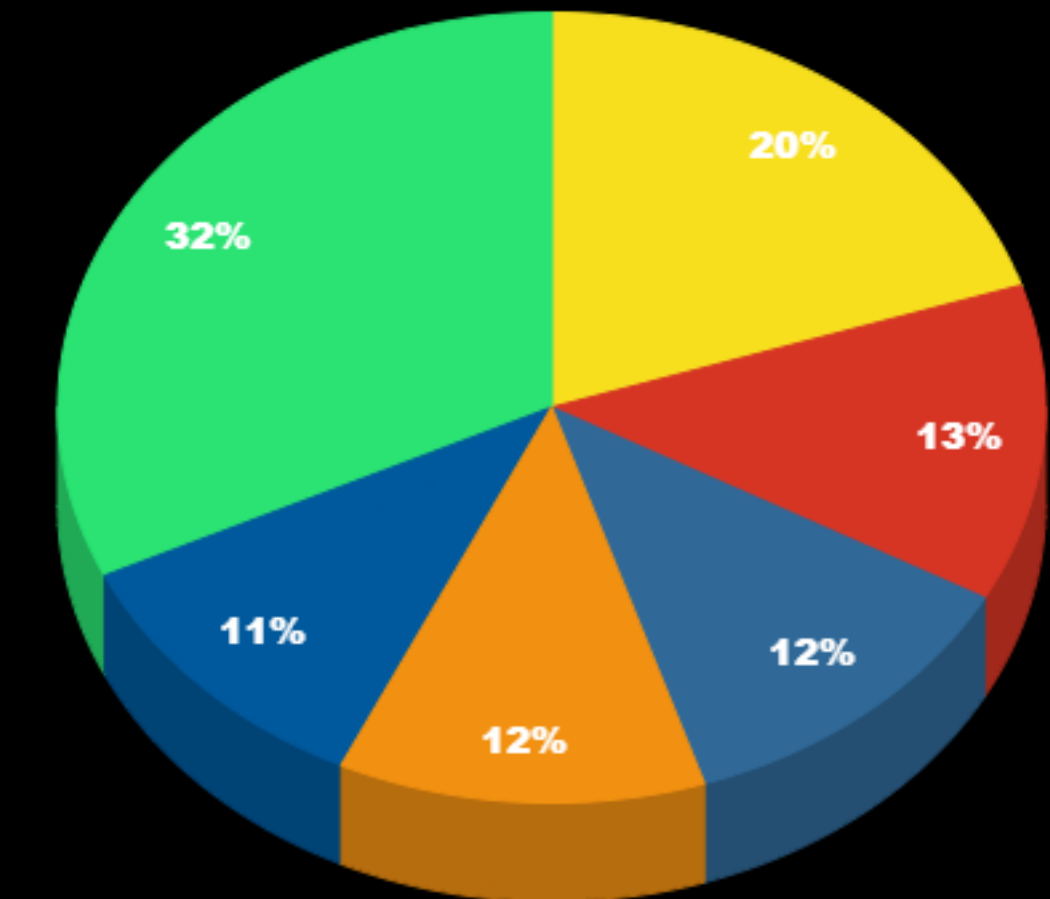

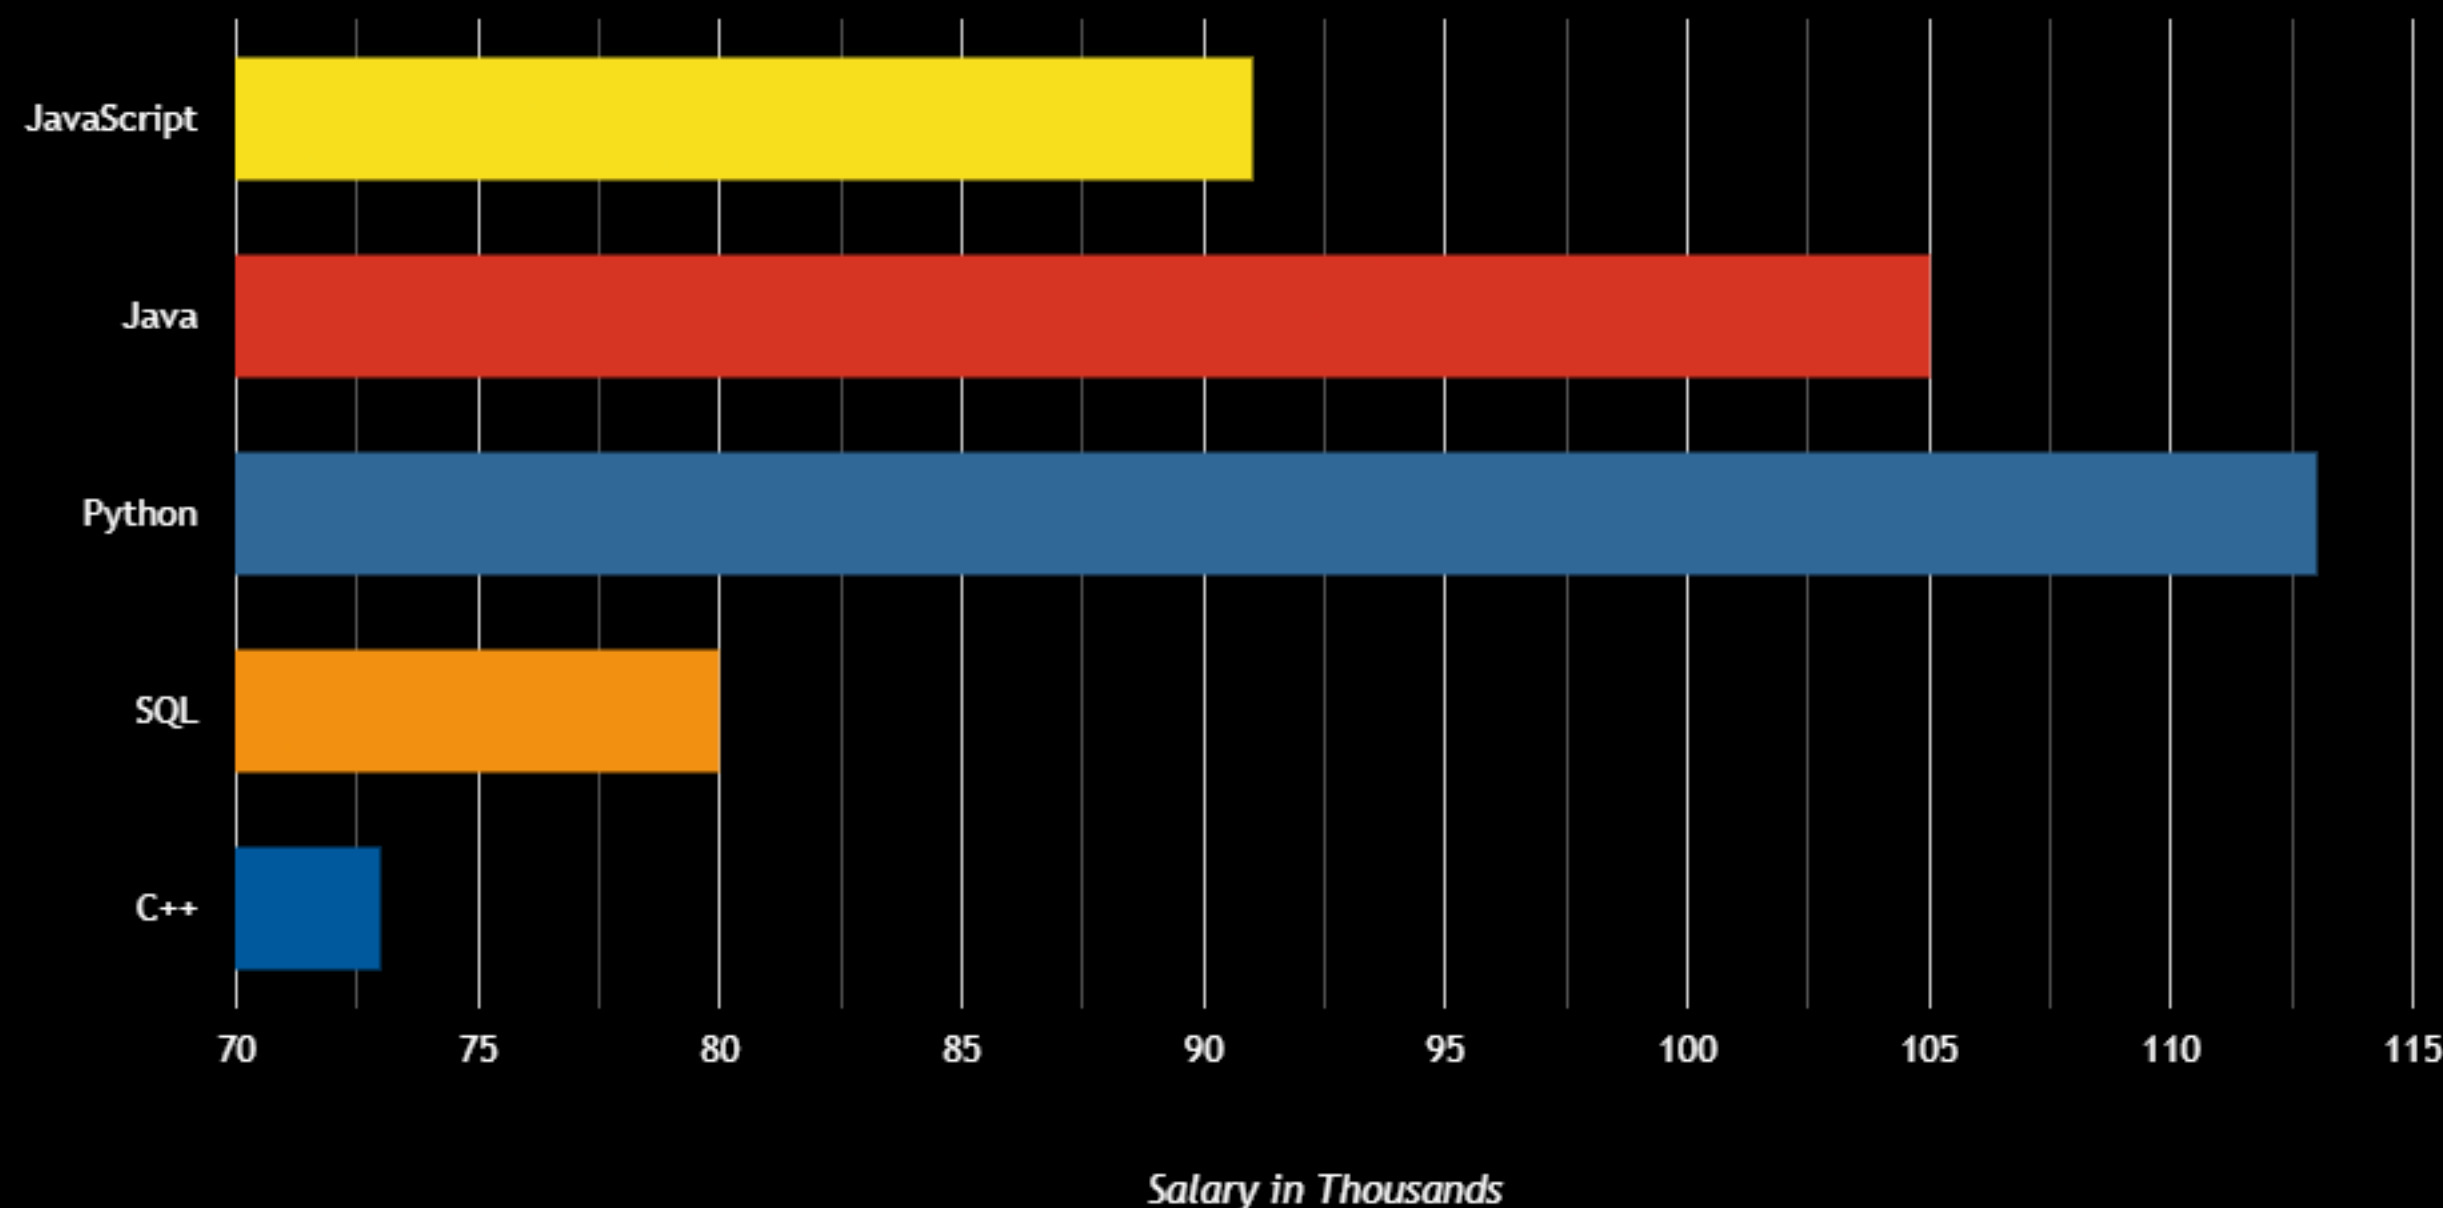

Python simplifies software engineering, with robust and extensive libraries to create almost anything. In industry, it is utilized in machine learning and AI applications.

Java remains one of the most versatile and widely used programming languages, excelling in large-scale enterprise applications. Commonly used in android app development and backend applications

<https://finance.yahoo.com/news/16-highest-paying-programming-languages-183512846.html>

Language Salary

JavaScript Java Python SQL C++ Other Languages

<https://coderslink.com/employers/blog/2024-programming-languages-forecast-whats-trending-in-tech-talent-acquisition>

SQL (Structured Query Language) is the standard for managing and manipulating databases. Industries in tech, finance, and healthcare use SQL for storing and retrieving large datasets.

C++ is a powerful, high-performance language, known for its fine-grained control over system resources. Gaming and robotics companies require intensive computing power, which C++ assists with.

